Ron Wyatt discusses capturing the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat in sports photography. Whether you're an ambitious beginner or a seasoned pro, Ron will cover equipment, camera set-up, and planning an awesome shooting strategy. Ron will also emphasize the importance of knowing the game - how to have fun photographing sports and what it's like to cover the Olympic Games. Before you know it, "play ball" will resound in your neighborhood and ballparks across the land. Ron will help the family photo-bugs prepare for capturing the action on and around the field. This is the perfect seminar to learn the basics of sports photography and see images of epic sporting events captured by a true pro.

Ron Wyatt's first attempt at photography was a failed attempt to document his honeymoon. Armed with a borrowed instamatic camera, he discovered that camera shake did not result in outstanding photographs. Ron has covered the NBA, NFL, and Major League Baseball as a self-taught photographer. Additionally, he photographed two Olympic summer games for Kodak. His photographs have been published in numerous publications, including USA Today, Black Enterprise Magazine, Time Magazine, Newsweek, TV Guide, and ESPN, among others. He has covered corporate events for Six Flags, Day Pitney, Honda North America, CVS, Pepsi, The Seeing Eye, Verizon, MetLife, Capital One, RWJ Barnabas Health, the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, NJ Monthly, and Walmart, among others. His photography has enabled him to travel to various countries all over the world.
